10. Describe how your virtual or hybrid program/campus aligns with the school system's broader strategic goals or improvement plans.

Dickinson ISD's Virtual Program directly supports the district's mission to provide meaningful flexible learning experiences for all students. The program aligns with several district objectives by expanding access personalization and opportunities for students to engage in real-world learning. It will help ensure that all students graduate college career and/or military ready (Objective 2) while also teaching them to self-advocate and take ownership of their success (Objective 4). The program's design emphasizes communication collaboration and leadership—skills reflected in the district's goals for students to develop strong interpersonal and social-emotional skills (Objectives 3 6 and 7). Students will collaborate in virtual environments engage in mentoring and community partnerships and build the confidence needed to thrive beyond graduation. In addition by embedding digital citizenship responsible technology use and innovative learning tools the virtual program supports the objective for students to develop technological skills to navigate an evolving global society (Objective 5). At the strategic level the program advances Goal 1 by promoting effective teaching and learning through aligned curriculum assessment and best instructional practices. It supports Goal 2 by offering a safe equitable and flexible learning environment that meets the needs of diverse learners. The program also contributes to Goal 3 by fostering strong family and community partnerships through transparent communication and flexible scheduling. Finally the initiative provides meaningful professional growth opportunities for staff (Goal 4) and leverages the district's investment in technological infrastructure and responsible fiscal management (Goal 5). In short Dickinson ISD's Virtual Program is a direct extension of the district's commitment to innovation equity and student success.

11. Describe what knowledge or experience the school system's leadership team brings to designing and supporting high-quality virtual or hybrid instruction.

Hannah Brooks
 Director of Virtual Programs - As Director of Virtual Programs for Dickinson ISD
 I'm leading the development of the district's first virtual program from forming the planning committee and designing the program structure to selecting curriculum and drafting the handbook. I collaborate closely with Teaching and Learning Technology and district leadership to ensure the program aligns with our instructional goals and CCMR priorities. I bring nine years of administrative experience as a junior high assistant principal high school dean of instruction and associate principal. In those roles I coached teachers led PLCs aligned curriculum and used data to improve student outcomes resulting in measurable gains in STAAR performance. I have a strong understanding of high school course pathways graduation plans and CCMR requirements and I use that knowledge to help students stay on track for college career and military readiness. My leadership style centers on collaboration creativity and strategic problem-solving. I'm passionate about innovation and building programs that expand opportunities for students to learn and succeed. Caroline Lightfoot

Director of Technology - My expertise in designing and supporting high-quality virtual and hybrid instruction is built on an academic foundation (M.Ed. in Instructional Technology) and over 14 years of dedicated program leadership within district technology. As the Director of Technology I provide strategic oversight aligning technology development and long-range plans with instructional goals to ensure seamless integration across all departments. My previous role as Technology Integration Coordinator included directly managing researching and budgeting for all educational technology applications used by teachers and students. Crucially I have experience designing and supporting hybrid models specifically implementing technology solutions for programs like Credit Recovery and designing controls for standardized instructional procedures. Furthermore I drive staff development for technology ensuring our educators are continuously equipped to leverage tools effectively for blended learning and high-quality digital instruction. Jennifer Rushing

Technology Services and Applications Manager - I have worked in instructional technology for the past 11 years. During this time I have implemented blending learning throughout our district with Google Classroom and now Schoology. I have led multiple blended learning professional developments here in the district as well as at national conferences. I have created online courses for teachers to expand their knowledge on applications used in the district as well as blended learning. Prior to being in the technology department I was a classroom teacher and technology Liaison for my campus and helped my colleagues blend technology into their daily routines. Deanna Williams Coordinator of Digital Learning and Instructional Materials - My experience in designing and integrating SCORM (shareable content object reference model) packages directly into Learning Management Systems (LMS) ensures I can develop high-quality virtual and hybrid instruction that is both engaging and measurable. Furthermore my role as a District LMS Administrator allows me to work closely with curriculum specialists to establish critical infrastructure. This collaboration ensures that lesson pacing integrated digital tools official curriculum documents and academic standards are consistently and easily accessible within the LMS. This holistic approach guarantees teacher ease of use and directly supports optimized student success.

12. Describe what research, data, or stakeholder input informed the school system's decision to pursue a virtual or hybrid model.

Dickinson ISD's decision to pursue a virtual program is informed by both statewide trends and local student needs. Since 2014 enrollment in Texas public virtual schools has increased more than 1000% and is projected to double by 2028. While historically virtual students were primarily medically fragile homebound or otherwise unable to attend traditional schools recent data show that most virtual students today are similar to those in traditional classrooms reflecting broad interest across grade levels and backgrounds. The pandemic further demonstrated the effectiveness of virtual instruction for many students and highlighted the demand for flexible learning options. Locally Dickinson ISD leaders have observed students struggling with attendance mobility or other barriers that interfere with in-person learning. Currently when a student comes to a counselor with scheduling issues that cannot be resolved with a traditional in-person schedule the options are limited. In some cases the district loses students to external online programs—students we could have retained if we had a high-quality virtual program of our own. Offering a district-based virtual option will provide a structured and supportive alternative allowing students to continue progressing academically while maintaining engagement and continuity. By combining these local observations with statewide research and policy developments including Senate Bill 569 and TEA guidance for virtual schools Dickinson ISD is positioned to meet both current and future student needs through a flexible rigorous and accountable virtual learning model.

13. Which best describes the school system's key areas of need for the virtual/hybrid program?

Note: Answers provided will not limit the type of support the school system will receive if accepted into the program. Instead, this information will be used to better understand the school system's key area of need.

- Aligned, effective vision and model that is responsive to family and student needs.
- Family engagement, communication, and/or recruitment plan.
- Staffing and/or teacher/staff recruitment plan.
- Plan for communicating clear administrator, teacher, student, and family roles within a virtual/hybrid model. (and wherever needed, support for shifting mindsets)
- Instructional framework for designing high-quality virtual and hybrid courses aligned to research-based practices.
- Student attendance and engagement plan.
- School Culture and student well-being plan.
- Plan for supporting special populations and at-risk students.
- Student onboarding sessions, including learning strategies and support for cultivating mindsets rooted in the science of learning, self-directed learning skills, how to use digital tools, and help-seeking during asynchronous and/or synchronous instruction.
- Teacher development (PD and ongoing job-embedded coaching) to deliver high-quality instruction and learning experiences in a virtual/hybrid model.
- High-Quality Instructional Materials. (for core curriculum and adjusted for virtual/hybrid learning)
- Data collection and progress monitoring systems.
- Technology Strategy and Data Privacy Framework. (including hardware, connectivity, digital tools, and cybersecurity policies)
- Master schedule that is appropriately set up for virtual or hybrid learning.

14. Describe which additional topics, areas of support, or identified gaps would be most helpful to strengthen the school system's virtual or hybrid model.

To strengthen our district's virtual program additional support in three key areas would be most beneficial: teacher training on customizing digital curriculum strategies for increasing student engagement and improved data systems integration. Teachers will use a purchased curriculum but need support in tailoring lessons and pacing to align with Dickinson ISD's instructional goals and CCMR priorities. Another priority is enhancing student engagement and connection. Many virtual learners struggle with motivation and time management so providing professional development and tools focused on building relationships monitoring progress and offering timely feedback would improve academic outcomes. Finally integrating our virtual learning platform with existing district data systems would allow for real-time tracking of attendance progress and CCMR indicators. This would strengthen communication between virtual and campus staff support early intervention and ensure all students stay on track for graduation and postsecondary readiness.

15. Describe which curriculum the school system is currently using, or planning to use for virtual learning for core courses.

Dickinson ISD plans to use FlexPoint Education as the core curriculum for its virtual program. All courses are customizable allowing units and lessons to be rearranged to align with Dickinson ISD's scope and sequence. Additionally teachers can create supplementary lessons to address any gaps in instruction. All courses will be delivered by Dickinson ISD certified teachers ensuring alignment with the Texas Essential Knowledge and Skills (TEKS) and district standards. This approach allows students to engage in rigorous high-quality instruction while benefiting from the flexibility of online learning. Using certified teachers rather than fully outsourced instruction also allows for meaningful teacher-student interaction real-time support and progress monitoring. The curriculum combines synchronous and asynchronous learning opportunities to offer a structured personalized experience giving students flexibility while ensuring mastery of core concepts and skills.

16. Which content is the school system considering when adopting new instructional materials or curriculum for virtual learning? (choose all that apply)

Note: Curriculum adoption is not a requirement of the program, but rather an optional support; the response to this question will help us better understand the school system's needs.
